At Building Bridges we believe that creating a more just and inclusive world begins with individuals. We bring young people together with those they have been taught to fear and mistrust, and equip them with the communication tools they need to build relationships across those divides. Participants emerge with hope, energy, and the skills they need to build communities free from hatred, discrimination and violent conflict.

Why Circles of Change?

By celebrating others’ accomplishments each year, we hope to demonstrate that positive change is possible and that the courageous acts of one expand into circles of change. We also hope to pass this belief onto Building Bridges participants and teach that the tireless acts of individuals are what create more just, inclusive societies. Former honorees include:

- Tim Sweeney, President and CEO of the Gill Foundation
- Susan Sygall, CEO and Co-Founder of Mobility International U.S.A.
- Walter Isenberg, President & CEO of Sage Hospitality, Co-Founder of Concerts for Kids
- William L. Ury, author of Getting to Yes
- Inocente Azucar, artist and star of an Oscar-winning documentary
